Certified Homemaker-Home Health Aide Training Program

Quality Healthcare Services (QHS) offers training to become a New Jersey Certified Homemaker-Home Health Aide (CHHHA). Our program is approved by the New Jersey Board of Nursing and we are a training provider for the Department of Labor and Workforce Development.

Our program prepares individuals to become Certified Home Health Aides (CHHA) who will provide personal care and support for people who are disabled, ill, recovering from illness, or otherwise unable to perform the usual activities of daily living.

CHHA are employed in home care agencies, assisted living facilities, long term care facilities, and can provide rehab and restorative care.

The course consists of two weeks of class work with lab, and two clinical days. The program includes instruction in basic nutrition; home management, sanitation, and safety; infection control; communication skills; medical emergency recognition; care for common medical conditions; rehab and restorative care; and legal and ethical responsibilities.

Participants are assisted in completion of the application for the NJ Board of Nursing. Quality Healthcare Services will provide employment for those satisfactorily completing the course or assist in finding employment at another Agency.
